Blue Land Kure

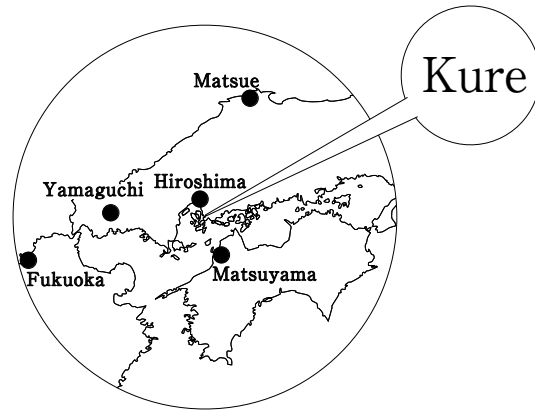

Kure, Setouchi's City of Many Faces.

Welcome to Kure, where salt air, rich history, nostalgic streetscapes, and fresh seafood come together in a relaxed coastal and island way of life.
Stroll through Kure, meet warm people,
and discover the city that helped shape modern Japan.
Each visit, the waves seem to whisper,
“Welcome home.”

This logo captures the essence of Kure, nestled between the sea and the mountains. It features the calm sea of Kure and the gentle waves rippling across its surface, overlaid with the silhouettes of the islands of the Seto Inland Sea and Kure and the surrounding mountain peaks.

Yamato Museum (Kure Maritime Museum)

*Reopening on Thursday, April 23, 2026
(after renovation).

The world’s largest battleship “Yamato” which was built in Kure has been re-created at 1/10 scale and is displayed at the museum, along with other large items such as a “Zero Fighter” and a human torpedo “Kaiten.” The history of Kure developed along with the modernization of Japan, and the science and technology of shipbuilding and steelmaking that supported its history have been handed down to the present day. The history of Kure, which embodies the history of Japan’s modernization since the Meiji era, and the various fields of science and technology—including shipbuilding and steelmaking—that formed the foundation of that modernization are introduced through the efforts of those who came before us, as well as the lifestyles and culture of the time.

8th Commanding Officer of the Kure Naval Station Tomosaburo Kato Bronze Sculpture

Tomosaburo Kato was a naval soldier and a native of Hiroshima Prefecture. From 1909 (Meiji 42) to 1913 (Taisho 2), he arrived at Kure to take up his post as the commanding officer of the Kure Naval Station. In 1922 (Taisho 11), he was the first Hiroshima native to be inaugurated as Japan's Prime Minister. At the Washington Conference, he stressed the importance of national defense through diplomacy. He actively supported disarmament and was highly praised both in and out of Japan.

In honor of his achievements, there is a bronze statue of him erected in front of the former official residence of the commanding officer of the Kure Naval Station (in the Irifuneyama Memorial Museum).

Irifuneyama Memorial Museum

The former official residence of the Commander-in-Chief of the Kure Naval District, located inside the museum, has been restored to its original appearance from 1905 and is designated as a National Important Cultural Property. The kinkarakami (Japanese gilt embossed paper) adorning the walls and the ceilings of the Western-style section is well worth seeing. The former Kure Naval Arsenal Tower Clock was installed in 1921 and kept time alongside the former Kure Naval Arsenal until the end of the war. This was Japan's first domestically produced electric master-slave impulse clock, and the melody played four times a day was composed by elementary and junior high school students in the city.

Ginkgo Connected to Fleet Admiral Togo

A ginkgo seedling was gifted from the Japanese government to the United Kingdom in the 1870s and was planted in Pembroke. Locally, over the years it has been known locally as "Fleet Admiral Togo's Ginkgo Tree." As part of a homecoming project by local Kure residents, a cuttage seedling of the ginkgo in Pembroke was planted in Irifuneyama Park (beside the former detached room of the residence of Fleet Admiral Togo) in 2020.

Former Kure Navy Petty Officers Assembly Hall (Aoyama Club)

The Aoyama Club was established in 1903 as a recreational facility "Kure Navy Petty Officers Assembly Hall (Kure Kaigun Kashisotsu Shukaijo)" which included entertainment and socializing for petty officers and sailors. It was renamed as the "Kure Navy Petty Officers Assembly Hall (Kure Kaigun Kashikanhei Shukaijo)" in 1921. In 1936, it underwent a large scale reconstruction. With a reinforced concrete structure, it took on its modern, present form. During the war it became well known as a social place for the Navy and ordinary citizens to connect.

After the war, the building was used as "Kure House" until the withdrawal of the British Commonwealth Occupation Forces in 1956. The Maritime Self-Defense Force used it as a recreational facility after the BCOF's withdrawal. However all uses were ended in 2017. At present you can still see the exterior of the building.

Otomeza Theater

This theater was used as a drama or movie theater until around the 1960s, and later turned into a plant for sorting Ocho mikan oranges. It has been restored as a theater and is used for showing popular dramas and movies.

Legend has it that Kiyomori Taira, as the sun was about to set, waved his fan, forcing it to rise again long enough for excavation to be completed.

Three red arched Ondo bridges are the most attractive features of this small port town.

This area is filled with attractive spots such as a beautiful contrast among seasonal flowers, bridges, the sea, as well as historical sites concerning Kiyomori Taira.

Ondo no Seto waterway

Legend has it that Kiyomori Taira opened up this waterway in one day. In the vicinity of the waterway, there are many interesting and beautiful spots such as Kiyomorzuka (a memorial for Kiyomori Taira), Ondo no Seto Park, the Eiji Yoshikawa literary monument, Takagarasudai, and the Himaneki Statue. From a pedestrian bridge, No.3 Ondo Bridge, which was built along with the opening of the No.2 Ondo Bridge, you can enjoy the spectacular views of the Ondo no Seto waterway and Kure Bay.

- About 25 minutes by car from Kure City center
- 🅐 Approx. 190 cars (Free parking inside the Ondo no Seto Park), 26 cars (No.3 Ondo Bridge)

Ondo Tourism & Culture Center "Uzushio"

You can experience the unique culture of Ondo with its Ondo Kiyomori Festival, held once every five years, as well as the Ondo Boating Song, one of Japan's Three Great Boating Songs. From the café and deck within the Center, you can see up close the small and large ships that come and go through the Ondo Strait. This spot provides visitors with an excellent view of the Ondo Strait.

No.3 Ondo Bridge

From the "No.3 Ondo Bridge," which has the same crimson arch bridge form as the "Ondo Bridge" and the "No.2 Ondo Bridge," you can get a sweeping view of the Seto area in Ondo. There are a parking lot, restrooms, and wheelchair ramp set up here, so please enjoy a stroll when you come to the Seto area in Ondo.

Ondo Townscape

Entering a street from the National Route, you can find townscape that still retains vestiges of the Showa period.

- At Kure Station Bus Terminal, take the "Kure Kurahashijima Line." Get off at "Kiyomorzuka."

KURASHI AREA

This is a scenic place featuring beautiful beaches and romantic shipbuilding traditions as depicted in Japanese Manyoshu poetry.

Walk a little further from Ondo Area to Kurahashi Area.

There you will find people living with the sea from ancient times, a history of shipbuilding, and a valuable natural beauty that is never changed by time.

Katsuragahama Beach

Kurahashi was formerly called Nagato Island. From old times it was an important point for sea transport in the Seto Inland Sea. Kurahashi prospered due to ship manufacturing and the navy. From ancient times through the Nara Era, there are records of boats being made here for overseas missions. It has white sand, blue seas and green pine forests. This beach was chosen as one of the 100 best beaches and shores in Japan. It has expansive scenery that is as beautiful now as it was in the past.

If you come to Kure, please try Kure gourmet specialties!

Experiencing local food can be the best part of a trip.

Traditional food makes you reflect on its casual taste and history. There are mountain food grown in a warm climate and seafood grown in a calm sea.

Please try a variety of delicious meals and make great memories.

【Hoso Udon (thin udon noodles)】

Hoso Udon has soft, thin noodles that require a short boiling time. It was loved by busy workers at a former naval arsenal as a quick meal.

【Kure Reimen (cold noodles)】

Kure Reimen has flat noodles and is served in a sweet, sour and spicy soup. It has been a favorite with the locals as a soul food.

【Kure Maritime

Self-Defense Force Curry】

About 20 restaurants in the city recreate and serve curry dishes inspired by those served on naval vessels and in units of the JMSDF Kure Base.

【Chirimen (Baby Sardines)】

These dried and seasoned baby sardines are caught in the surrounding sea. Chirimen are all-natural without bleaching and are famous nationwide.

【Oysters】

Kure is one of Japan's leading oyster-producing areas! Their rich seaside aroma is sure to whet your appetite.

【Ocho Mikan (Mandarin Orange)】

The "Ocho Mikan" in Yutaka and Toyohama is a nationally recognized variety. It's known for its refreshing, sweet, and rich taste.

【Otakara (Treasure) Tomato】

Another name for tomatoes harvested in winter and spring. The "Otakara Tomato" in Kurahashi is characterized by its deep taste, rich red color, and firm texture.

【Lemon】

Kure City boasts the largest volume of lemons shipped in Japan. Among areas in Kure, Yutaka is the birthplace of Hiroshima-made lemons. They are cultivated with safety in mind, so you can eat them with the skin on.

Healthy dishes for long voyages.

The search for healthy dishes was the start of Navy gourmet. Many studies were made in search for healthy dishes for crewmembers, such as adopting western cuisine, to prevent diseases during long voyages, as well as preparing delicious meals for them, as eating was one of the few enjoyments inside a battleship. As a result of those efforts, Navy gourmet dishes were born. In Kure City, which is closely connected to the former Japanese Navy, we are working to revive those dishes based on the cookbooks from the Meiji Navy and the recipes from the Showa navy ships. Try a few of these dishes, and experience the atmosphere from those days.
